

ABOUT SAT SHREE'S MISSION

Before his awakening Sat Shree was a successful architect, community activist, and part owner of a solar energy company. He was happily married with two children and was not seeking spirituality at that time. He didn't feel anything was lacking in his life. In the early winter of 1998, Sat Shree experienced a sudden awakening to the spiritual dimension of existence. While working late one night at his drafting table, in a moment of despondency and alienation, he collapsed and woke up hours later with ecstatic energy coursing through every cell of his body.

He says of this experience, "This state arose suddenly without any effort on my part in the midst of an individual human life one night in 1998. This awakening was a glimpse of an utterly different and radical state of being that I now reside in. However, back then it was just the beginning of a process that set in motion a transformation that utterly changed reality as I had known it. A process that continues to this day."

In his awakening the whole universe revealed itself, showing him that we are all interconnected and that everything is purposeful. This awakening radically shifted the course of his life. Some months after the awakening he met his teacher, someone far ahead of him on the path. He left his middle class life in Nevada to spend six years in his teacher's ashram in India. He immersed himself in the ancient spiritual teachings of the Hindu Vedic tradition, especially the Bhagavad Gita. Before he returned to the United States, he had gone through four distinct stages of awakening. The intense transformation process that began with this awakening completed in 2007.

Sat Shree says, "After coming to this state it soon became apparent this did not just happen to me, but is the beginning of an unfolding process of a radical and extraordinary new collective consciousness that is now available to mankind. It is clear that a new possibility now exists for humanity; the next stage of human evolution." "My work," he says, "is to show people how to collaborate with the natural maturation process that occurs when one is on the spiritual path. A process that, in fact, all of humanity is going through."

Sat Shree is now the spiritual director and co-founder of New Dharma, a non-profit spiritual organization in Nevada, along with his wife and spiritual partner, Satyamayi. His mission is to collaborate with those who are called to manifest a new spiritual culture that is in alignment with universal spiritual principles, and by doing so inspire mankind to create a sustainable future for the millions of generations to come.
